

G-UNITY SCHOLARSHIP RECIPIENT

ANGIE MICHEL

“The G-UNITY Scholarship has made all the difference for me. I would like to tell “50” that he has inspired me to follow my dream to be in the music business. I changed my major to music electronic technology at Queensborough because of this scholarship – I thought it was a sign.”

Angie Michel sets her goals high. Growing up in Far Rockaway, she traveled to the Humanities and the Arts High School in Cambria Heights to pursue her love of singing.

Whether it was singing in the church choir, or school talent shows, or studying for her music courses at Queensborough, Angie Michel progresses each day closer to a career that combines her interest in teaching, a passion to inspire children to learn, and her “first love” – music. Her vision right now is to lead a school for children with artistic talents.

“Life can be distracting,” Angie said, “but if you learn from the distractions and stay focused on the main goals, it keeps the path pretty straight.”

Angie would like to continue her studies at Hunter College, possibly with a business degree that would help her manage her school. However, she wouldn’t mind taking one break along the way – an appearance on “American Idol.”
